Art Unit: 2154

Art Rejections:

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.
2. Claims 1-12 and 24-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Balasubramaniam et al, U.S. pat. No. 6,477,550.

Per claims 1 and 6-7, Balasubramaniam discloses a system and method that provides access to web resources to be processed by a web browser comprising:

- a) prior to issuing a request to a server for a web resource, selecting an override client version property set that is different from a default client version property set associated with the web browser, the client version property set having been selected so as to processing and obtain appropriate data to be presented on the web browser; and
- b) transmitting the request to the server for a web resource, the request including the override client version property set (see col 6, lines 22-37 and col 8, lines 22-37).

It is noted that by processing the user input in a different manner using the override properties, different types of data can be generated or retrieved from the web server.

Balasubramaniam does not explicitly teach using the override property set to obtain an appropriate version of the web resource.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize the override property set to change default actions in processing user's input data as well as interacting with the server, e.g., sending request to obtain data from the server because it would have provided conventional browsing functions of the web browser.

Per claims 2-5, an official notice is taken that the use of a client-side or server-side DNS or directory database to direct user's request to a destination web server is well known in the art.

Per claims 8-12, Balasubramaniam also teaches optionally downloading an executable script from the server to provide the override property set at the client browser (see col 6, lines 44-54).

Claims 24-30 are similar in scope as that of claims 1-12 and hence are rejected for the same rationale set forth above for claims 1-12.

Art Unit: 2154

Allowable Subject Matter:

3. Claims 13-23 and 31-35 are allowed over prior art of record.

Conclusion:

4. The references cited by the examiner on PTO-892 but not relied upon are considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
